The cost of preserving history

DUBLIN — The past is catching up with the present as the Dublin Historical Preservation Association (DHPA) continues its restoration project known as the Alameda County Heritage Center.

The Center is located on a four - and - one - half acre site on Donlon Way in Dublin. So far, it contains Old Murray School, Old St. Raymond's Church, and the Pioneer Cemetery. A replica of the Jeremiah Fallon Home is expected to be included in the near future.

The idea of building the Heritage Center is to preserve past history for future generations. Restoration projects, new construction, educational displays and programs, and recreation areas will be used to carry out the theme.

This DHPA project began in September 1975, according to Marie Cronin. She is Executive Director of the Alameda County Bicentennial.

The county bicentennial group is under the jurisdiction of the California Bicentennial Commission which offered official recognition and funding to DHPA.

Other funding and recognition came from the Alameda County Training and Employment Board in conjunction with the California Employment Training Act (ACTEB/ CETA). The project was also designated by the California Landmark Association.

Proposed four-year costs of developing Heritage Center total $186,874. That figure excludes costs of acquiring proposed additional land and historic buildings.

That figure and any others mentioned are stated in a proposal DHPA has submitted requesting funds totalling $60,000 from the Alameda County Parks Advisory Commission under the 1976 Recreation Bond Act. Thus far, DHPA has not received any of the monies requested under this Act.

However, some funding has been obtained through tax deductible donations, state and county grant funding, and service - in - kind donations.

According to the proposal, $88,490 has been raised. DHPA officials stated they hope to raise the balance of $98,384 during 1977 and 1978.

Cronin pointed out that $14,976 of the $88,490 has been committed and is in "the works" but has not actually been received.

Grand jury will ask for rejected Hayward jail

Alameda County Bureau

The county grand jury will present results of its most recent probe into the Santa Rita jail to county supervisors next Tuesday.

The report reportedly calls for construction of a new south county jail in Hayward. Supervisors earlier this year killed those plans.

The report, stemming from a February near-riot in the women's quarters at Santa Rita, reviews the overall county jail policy, the need for new facilities, and the lock up of some 53 women in the maximum security Greystone wing.

The last woman inmate was released from Greystone this past Tuesday.

The jury reportedly will recommend that women not be put in Greystone in the future.

Board of supervisors' chairman Charles Santana and fellow supervisor Fred Cooper joined county sheriff Thomas Houchins in appearances before the jury Wednesday.

Santana is against construction of the south county facility, while Cooper is in favor of it.

The outspoken Houchins has publicly chastised the board for killing the project.

Meanwhile, Municipal Court Judges Jacqueline Taber, Marie B. Collins and Marilyn H. Patel reportedly are wrapping up their separate investigation of the disturbance.

The three launched their own probe after the Santa Rita women claimed they were strip searched at Greystone while being watched by guards.

Plutonium flights land at Livermore eight times a year.

Plutonium air lift here is safe—Lab

LIVERMORE — Highly radioactive plutonium has been shipped to the Livermore airport, a Lawrence Livermore Laboratory official confirmed yesterday.

Calling the procedure safe, a Lab spokesman told The Times the risk involved with the occasional shipments is "extremely minute."

"The safety record is essentially perfect," according to LLL information officer Jeff Garberson, who said air shipments are uncommon.

Garberson said most shipments come by truck from the Energy Research Development Agency (ERDA) plant at Rocky Flats, near Denver. The most recent air shipments were in April 1976 and August 1975, he said.

The spokesman would not specify the size of shipments, but did say they were small.

He said truck shipments arrive at the lab approximately seven or eight times a month.

A KPIX newscast Wednesday quoted a Colorado public health official who claimed there were eight such flights last year, bringing in plutonium for the weapons research work at the lab.

The Colorado Health Director Anthony Robbin reportedly was trying to prevent the flights, fearing a crash or mid air explosion could scatter minute particles of the cancer causing radioactive agent into the atmosphere.

"Plutonium is a heavy element in dense metallic form that is radioactive and chemically hazardous and must be handled with great care," said Garberson. He confirmed that when burned the plutonium can become airborne.

"It is shipped only in federally approved containers under strict guidelines which do allow for air shipment," he added.

"These air shipments are indeed legal," said an ERDA spokesman, who reported a few protest calls had been received from the public.

Livermore Airport Tower Chief Norm Clark told The Times a letter of agreement between the Lab and local fire and airport officials permits the flights but said he is not routinely informed when a shipment is coming.

Steven Ladd, a representative of the UC Nuclear Weapons Lab Conversion Project, told The Times he had not heard of the air shipments, but expressed alarm at the "obviously potential danger."

His group has been seeking conversion of the Lab to alternative energy research and plans a demonstration of 100-150 people here April 30.

He also indicated a "plutonium tour of the East Bay is planned May 12-13 to point out where plutonium

Stark wants public forum on the stuff

LIVERMORE — Rep. Fortney H. "Pete" Stark wants local scientists, residents and officials of Lawrence Livermore Laboratory to show up April 30 when he holds a People's Forum on the issue of transportation of plutonium into Livermore airport.

Stark called for the 2:30 p.m. meeting at Shannon Community Center, 11600 Shannon Ave., Dublin, when he learned of the deadly material being used at the Lab.

"The bombmakers have no right to conceal public dangers that may be involved in transportation of plutonium and developing nuclear weapons near residential neighborhoods," he said.

Stark said a Lab spokesman told his office that since March of last year seven shipments of plutonium have been flown from Livermore to a Nevada atomic test site, and that shipments came to Livermore from Rocky Flats, Colorado, in August 1975 and April 1976.

The Lab spokesman reportedly acknowledged that plutonium is sometimes carried in "substantial" amounts but added that the amounts, destinations and times of transport are classified.

Stark wants the Lab to specifically say whether plutonium is being flown in and out of Livermore and are the amounts considered dangerous. Noting that some forms are more lethal than others, Stark also wants to know if the plutonium is in powder, liquid or solid form.

"What emergency preparations have been made in case of a crash," asked the congressman. "Is the lab using the safest possible method of transporting the plutonium and if so, is it safe enough?"

Stark also wants to know of plans to prevent hijacking.

A Lab spokesman called The Times to "agree" with Stark that people have the right to know and said the plutonium shipments "is not a secret and never has been."

I-580 widening near end

More than three - fourths of the work has been finished on the $34 million Interstate 580 widening job through the Dublin Canyon.

The entire project between Eden Canyon Road in Castro Valley and a point near the intersection of Interstates 580 and 680 is scheduled to be finished by late November, 1977. Under the state contract with S.J. Grooves and Co., a portion of the existing four - lane highway between Dublin and Hayward is being upgraded to an eight - lane freeway with an eight - foot median.

According to an agreement between the state, the federal government and the Sierra Club, the future inside lanes (closest to the median) in both directions will be used exclusively for high occupancy vehicles and carpools from 6 a.m. Monday to 6 p.m. Friday. On weekends, all lanes in both directions will be open to all traffic.

More check charges

One of three people facing bad check passing charges was arraigned yesterday on two additional counts in Livermore Municipal Court.

Belinda Crockett McDuff, 26, of San Bruno, was charged with forging two more checks, in the amounts of $400 and $300. Also charged with various related offenses are Reginald B. Dixon, 27, of San Francisco, and Anita Maria Eberhart, 23, of Las Vegas.

The trio have been ordered to appear June 1 for a preliminary hearing.

The Department of Justice has reportedly accused McDuff of being a member of the King - Brown gang, a statewide forgery ring that has allegedly operated across the state for more than a year.

Here's what's wrong with Komandorski

PLEASANTON — "If I had to live in Komandorski Village, I mean, if I lived in Komandorski Village..."

Housing Authority Commissioner Ed Alves caught himself the other night, but what slipped out first was the attitude most Valley residents, including many Komandorski Village tenants themselves, feel about the 170 unit project which was built as "temporary war housing" in 1943.

Some people who drive by the project think it's not so bad. Just slap on a coat of paint and do a few improvements totaling maybe half a million dollars, and you can have decent housing for the next 30 years. It would save federal taxpayers the estimated $7.9 million that new public housing would cost.

Someone finally did a thorough survey of Komandorski and from the looks of his report, it will take a lot more than a coat of paint to make Komandorski Village a low - income domicile where people DESIRE to live. Correcting all the problems would cost an estimated $8.2 million, according to Vandament.

Following are some of the highlights of Vandament's 16 page report.

On the outside, sewer lines have stopped up many times because of broken sections or roots. Electrical transformers have been burning out, indicating a heavy overload. Their poles are in "fair to poor condition" and their meters are in wooden boxes.

Water distribution system is in "very poor condition" resulting in many leaks and losses of water", said the report. Leaks also were found in the underground oil storage tanks and more are suspected. Outdoor lighting is inadequate; there is no lighting for 90 per cent of the downstairs units' front entrances.

New Times

Dance your tootsies off

PLEASANTON — The Good Times will still roll in this city this weekend, but not in the form of the KNBR Parade.

No, the parade has left town, but the merriment continues in the form of a 28 hour dance marathon at Veterans Hall on Main Street beginning at 8 p.m. today and ending at midnight Saturday. It will feature dancing contestants from many local clubs.

People who attend at $7.50 per couple for one night or $10 for the weekend may cast ballots in the form of dollars for the best dancers. There will be a bar serving liquor during standard bar hours, except for Saturday afternoon during the teen dance.

Just for the record, here's the complete schedule for the event. Friday: 7-8 p.m. pick up entry number and give dance representative a schedule of your dancers if you are with an organization; 8 - 9 p.m., grand kick - off with taped music; 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., music by Gene Rolandelli's Orchestra.

At 9 p.m. there will be a Jitterbug dance contest backed by Rolandelli's band and a Charleston dance contest at 11:30 p.m.

Taped music comes on at 1 a.m., there's a half hour rest break at 1:30 a.m. (there will be a 10 minute break every hour); taped music resumes from 2 a.m. to 4 a.m., another half hour rest break and then more taped music from 4:30 a.m. to 6 a.m. There will be a rest break and breakfast from 6 a.m. to 7 a.m. and taped music till noon, when a rest break occupies a half hour. Lunch will be served from noon to 2 p.m. by the Senior VIP club.

Taped music resumes from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m., another break and then three hours of live teen music by the Uncle West band, including a bump dance contest at 3:30 p.m.

Taped music resumes at 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. and the Gene Rolandelli Orchestra returns for music till the conclusion at midnight. There will be a twist contest at 9 p.m. and a cha-cha contest at 11 p.m.

Dinner Saturday will be served buffet style from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. by the Evergreen Branch of Childrens Memorial Hospital.

Playing for crumbs and Mel Tillis

LIVERMORE — Between rehearsal takes, the band munches on cookies.

Orion, one of the local musical groups to be featured during next month's Mel Tillis Concert at Livermore Valley Stadium, rehearses in a Dublin warehouse normally occupied by trucks from Mother's Cookies and Toscana Bakery.

The six piece band will be in the middle of a melodic rendition of "Top of the World" only to find one of the delivery trucks rolling in for a pick up. Quickly, they scamper to move their sound equipment, and quickly they are rewarded with a few snappers to crunch on.

And then its back to smoothing out the rough spots in their performance.

Orion is the brainchild of Wes Chapman, a 20 year old Livermore resident who was asked in February to audition for the Tillis show.

He's been playing piano since the age of five, went the whole classical route and settled into a variety that doesn't go quite as wild as acid rock but includes everything from country western to jazz.

"I've been in other bands, but this is the first band I've put together," said the young musician who dreams of hitting the big time, complete with the fame and glamorous excitement.

When Rotarian committeeman Rus Bargmann approached Wes, Orion was still in the formation stages. He had started rehearsing with drummer George Burdick of Santa Clara, lead singer Laura Garske of Pleasanton and backup singer Valerie Carrigan of Pleasanton.

Wes knew he needed more people for the band, but the first of two auditions was around the corner and it was off to the Rancher for the Rotary's inspection of his sounds.

The Rotary is holding the May 22 Mel Tillis concert to raise money for stadium lights.

"We were pretty nervous," Wes recalled. He told of listening to one of the other bands, "Ron Dunivan and the Country Travelers," and being really impressed with their quality.

"I wanted to go out there and blow them away," said Wes. "I was interested in seeing how we would stack up against a more experienced band."

Best bands made it, along with five member Tri-V Express band and singer-guitarist Cyndee Paulson.

After the first audition, Orion picked up Dan Stuart, a lead guitarist from Pleasanton, and Lou-Ann Petersen, a backup harmony singer from Danville.

Wes Chapman has a band.

Parents post $100 reward

Stop smoking plan offered by Seventh-Day Adventists

LIVERMORE — Stop smoking Sunday night!

A five-day plan to stop smoking will be offered Sunday, 7:30 p.m., at the Vinwood Lodge, 35 Fenton St., as a community service of the Seventh-day Adventist church in Livermore.

The successful international program includes five group therapy sessions; films, lectures and demonstrations; the buddy system; and a personal control book to follow each day.

set fire to in the trailer door, a plexiglass window apparently with a torch. The flames ignited the wooden door frame and some ceiling tiles and melted plastic strips on the ceiling. A neighbor spotted the blaze and turned in an alarm, bringing out both the Livermore and Lawrence Livermore Lab fire departments.

The carpet was damaged beyond repair, a typewriter was scorched and the thick black soot ruined some visual displays in the library. Except for the smell and smudges, the book collection did not suffer.

The fire was believed to have been set shortly before 8 p.m. Easter evening, April 10. Vice principal Hugh Alderdice, who attended the parents' meeting where the reward decision was made on Wednesday, commented, "If they can apprehend the person, it's going to be good as it will the school, because he or she needs help desperately."

The last time a reward was offered, he noted, it successfully uncovered the youths who set fire to the contents of cabinets and drawers in Room 8 at Arroyo Seco.

Anyone with information that might lead to the vandals' arrest and conviction may call the school, 455-1616, or the Livermore Police Department, 443-0111.

Jewel heist suspect in Hawaii, pleads innocent

HONOLULU — An 18 year old Livermore man last week pleaded not guilty in U.S. District Court here on charges of interstate transportation of stolen goods.

Accused of being involved in a $400,000 jewelry heist Feb. 21 in Maui is Fred Sanders Matheny, of 1428 Elm St. The case against his mother, Jean Atkins, was reportedly dismissed by District Judge Dick Yin Wong.

Matheny was released on $25,000 bail and is scheduled for a pre trial hearing 10 a.m., May 23, to be followed by a jury trial 9 a.m., June 1.

He has engaged Hyman Greenstein, a Honolulu attorney, to represent him.

Matheny was arrested in Livermore March 16 by local police and FBI agents armed with search warrants. They reportedly found in the suspect's possession a gold ring with three red rectangular stones and the inscription "LoH" inside the ring.

An FBI agent said the initials stood for Lapidary of Hawaii, a firm owned by My Son's Jewelry Store in Maui. That firm was robbed Feb. 21.

Moments after Livermore Municipal Judge Al Lewis dismissed local charges of possessing stolen property April 2, FBI agents armed with arrest warrants took custody of the defendant and his mother.

"We've been informed by ERDA officials in Oakland that there have been as much as 700 pounds of plutonium in use at LLL at any one time," he said. "Plutonium is one of the most toxic substances known and that amount if released into the air or water could kill everyone on the planet."

"We've been concerned with the trucking," said Ladd, who noted photos of the trucks used show nothing unusual. "But, the public is never told how it is being protected," he complained.

Garberson said plutonium is used in the Lab's nuclear weapons program. "Plutonium is a component of nuclear weapons and for us to carry out proper design efforts we have to understand its behavior chemically and physically. We need to have it on site and study it."

The music soaked the warehouse and overflowed outside.

The youngsters in this band are counting on the exposure they will get at the Tillis concert to mushroom their musical careers.

Dreaming is part of show business and it is difficult for any of the members to escape the fantasy of an agent walking up to them after the show with a 20 week contract.

"I'm not counting on anything," said Wes, who has invited several agents and promoters from ocean line cruisers to see the show.

Although Orion will be stressing country and western music at this particular concert, they want to develop more pop music and hit the night club circuit.

Wes does some song writing, which he describes as "middle of the road." He plans to include one original piece "that has a lot of potential" in the Tillis concert presentation.

"You'll Never Know What You Meant to Me" is a love song about a person's regret that a former love affair ended and now wishes they could have the other person back.

But, until May 22, when thousands of people will either be sitting in the stands or picnicing on the green field near the performers, Orion's music will be echoing off the walls of a Dublin warehouse, trucks will come and go in tune to an electric guitar and drums, and the performers will munch away on cookies and dream of stardom.

Smelly little story with serious climax

PLEASANTON — This is a story about the Old West and the New West, about a roundup that looked humorous when it happened, but has a serious moral to it.

It all began one day last week when Chuck Nichols, an employee at Print - it in downtown Pleasanton, saw a skunk in the parking lot behind that establishment.

Skunks in downtown Pleasanton are not conducive to the fiscal health of the place. Skunks definitely have a negative impact on climate.

Well, Nichols didn't wait around for the skunk to file an environmental impact report over at city hall. Noperson, he rode to the rescue.

His plan, like any cowboy in the old days, was to trap the skunk in a box canyon while the U.S. Cavalry, in the form of Alameda County Animal Control, could ride in.

Well, it gets lonely out there on the range chasin' skunks, so Don DeBolt, an owner of the Mexican restaurant, Hacienda del Sol, rode up on his own shank's mare and helped form a posse of two. The skunk-punchers, if that's what they are, found the box canyon they needed between the jewelry store and the old Sproule Reitz building on Main Street. They sealed it off with a garbage can.

The folks from animal control arrived and wanted to drop a noose over the skunk, a noose attached to a very long pole. "We don't use nets," they said. "That's just on television and in the comics." "Fine with us," said the seasoned skunkpunchers. "But we're gonna go down the road 50 yards or so before you do it." And thereby hangs a tale. As all of us here naturalists know, skunks have more common scents than most folks and the local boys were afraid of getting sprayed.

Animal Control thought about that for a minute and then decided to bait a trap instead. It caught the skunk a half day later and that brings us to the serious part of our story.

It turns out the skunk was rabid, just like another skunk, found dead last January in front of the Pleasanton police station.

Health Inspector Norman Paul told The Times yesterday that skunks, raccoons, foxes and bats often have rabies. The drought has forced many of those critters down into town to seek water and food so there have been many sightings (and smellings) of them lately.

Anyone seeing wild animals should call their local police department, said Paul. The numbers are 846-3202 in Pleasanton, 443-0111 in Livermore, and County Animal Control for the unincorporated areas, 846-4457 daytime and 577-1333 at night.

People or animals bitten by rabid animals must get shots as soon as possible.

Rabies vaccination for dogs every two years is mandatory. The county will sponsor a dog vaccination clinic from 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. June 5 at the Alameda County Fairgrounds. Fee will be $2 per dog. Paul said his office is thinking about having a vaccination clinic for cats sometime.

COVA transit request

The Congress of Valley Agencies' request for $3,500 from Alameda County to add the Valley to an AC Transit "transportation survey" will have to clear the Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

County supervisor and MTC Commissioner Joseph Bort said he will take it up with the MTC this week. But he warned the Bay Area wide agency generally requires a local cash contribution.

Valley supervisor Valerie Raymond said she will talk with the cities of Pleasanton and Livermore and ask them to contribute.

COVA, already threatened with extinction by the withdrawal of financial support by Livermore, is sponsoring the Valley Transportation Committee, which is asking for inclusion in the study.

The study covers senior citizen and handicapped problems in the East Bay plain between El Cerrito and Fremont.

Scientists? They're just like us — only smarter

By JIM CARR
Times Staff Writer

LIVERMORE — Scientists are "very much people" and not really difficult to understand, says the man who spent 37 years explaining them to the public.

"You don't often see people who are the stereotype of the scientist," said Pleasant Hill resident Daniel Wilkes, who recently retired from his career as a University of California public information officer.

Much of that time was spent at the Lawrence Laboratories at Livermore and Berkeley.

"They're very much just people. They're very conscious of things outside the lab," Wilkes says of the many scientists he worked with.

"But it's not an easy kind of work," Wilkes said of his own job — explaining complex scientific developments by Nobel Prize winners, Atomic Energy Commission chairmen and other "fascinating" individuals in layman's terms.

"It was always challenging, and easier than doing something you don't like to do. I always got caught up in it."

Indeed, he did, writing science articles as well as co-authoring and helping write several books.

Wilkes didn't concentrate his full-time efforts on the Berkeley and Livermore labs until 1962. In 1973, he limited himself to working at Livermore, retiring from his current position as special assistant to the director.

Wilkes has seen the Lawrence Labs grow from a division of the Cal physics department to two internationally known facilities.

When he first joined UC in 1940, "There were about 60 people in the physics department. Now, there are 2,500 in Berkeley and 6,400 in Livermore."

World War II played a major role in the labs' growth, Wilkes said.

Edward O. Lawrence, UC physics department chairman, developed and built the first atom-separating cyclotron in 1941, "just before Pearl Harbor. Lawrence used it to separate the radioactive isotope U235 from uranium."

Daniel Wilkes

"Because of the hopes for an atom bomb, the lab grew tremendously during the war."

When it was over, the federal government began supporting nuclear research heavily, in hopes of producing the hydrogen bomb, recalled Wilkes.

That coincided with Lawrence's desire to expand to "a second lab so there would be competition (among the scientists). In 1952, he established Livermore."

Livermore was a perfect site, it seems, because of several factors: "It was somewhat isolated but still within reasonable distance of Berkeley," Wilkes said.

More importantly, the government gave the lab a Navy air training base in Livermore no longer needed after WWII.

"Gradually, Berkeley became the basic research lab, while Liver-more moved toward application. A Livermore, things ultimately end up as hardware."

"Livermore's main mission was weapons design, thermonuclear reactors, and at the same time, fusion," Wilkes said. "We began a biomedical division at Livermore in 1963, focusing on radiation and the potential effects it has on man."

"About six or seven years ago, emphasis was placed on the biomedical aspects of every kind of pollution — oil, chemicals or radiation."

Livermore also possesses the world's "most powerful research computer," said Wilkes. "And I'm not talking about storage capabilities."

Like many other developments at Livermore, that computer "grew up from the needs of the weapons program. We have a mission to do — we were put there for weapons research — and things learned often become useful in many other areas."

Wilkes met many memorable individuals in his career, working closely with eight Nobel winners, including Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, a Lafayette resident who headed the AEC as well as the Livermore Lab.

"Someone getting a Nobel prize was always fun," Wilkes recalled. "When they did, I'd hold a press conference and it would have a party atmosphere."

On one such occasion, a reporter asked the laureate — who shall remain anonymous — to explain his prize-winning project.

The scientist was not actually offended, but his terse answer went something like: "I've spent entire school years trying to teach it to my students. And you want a one-line answer!"

"It had something to do with near - absolute zero (minus 460 degrees F.) temperatures, and to this day, I haven't been able to make sense of it," Wilkes laughed.

Buyers in line for Kaiser gravel plant

Alameda County Bureau OAKLAND — "Several interested buyers" are waiting in the wings with offers on Kaiser Sand and Gravel Co., according to parent company president William F. Roesch.

The announcement came at a meeting this week where Kaiser Industries Corp. stockholders overwhelmingly approved a plan of complete, voluntary liquidation of the wholly owned subsidiaries.

"Although we have not yet concluded an agreement for the sale of Kaiser Sand and Gravel, there are several interested buyers," Roesch told stockholders.

"Improving business conditions, particularly an upturn in construction, make Kaiser Sand and Gravel an increasingly attractive buy for the right company," he added. "And we expect to be able to wrap up its sale within the next few months."

Almost 99 per cent of the more than 21 million votes were in favor of the liquidation plan. Votes representing 73.2 per cent of the firm's 28.7 million shares were cast.

The liquidation plan, described in a company statement, proposes the pro rata distribution to stockholders of holdings in Kaiser Steel Corp., Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp., and Kaiser Cement and Gypsum Corp.

Roesch said the first liquidating distribution is planned for early June.

Other buyers reportedly are negotiating for Kaiser Aerospace and Electronics, Kaiser Broadcasting, Kaiser Engineering, and the parent company's 50 per cent interest in National Steel and Ship Building of San Diego.

Problems in the village

There are no laundry facilities. The closest coin-operated laundry is a mile away.

There are no special facilities for elderly or handicapped tenants. There is no proper storage area for trash and garbage disposal. The fire hydrants are out of date and there is only enough plumbing to serve water to one hydrant at a time.

All roofs and exterior doors need replacement.

On the inside, electrical wiring is too small for present day loads. Tenants must operate a switch which will operate either the stove or the hot water heater, but not both.

There is no circulation of heat from the oil space heaters so "occupants must gather around them to get warm". Fuel costs are very high. Heater combustion is inefficient and the walls are light in construction and allow 4.5 times as much heat out as they should.

Hot water heaters are small and wasteful of energy. Bathrooms are not adequate for three and four bedroom occupancy. There is no space for dining and living rooms and primary bedrooms are too small, according to standards set forth by the federal department of Housing and Urban Development.

New entry in sewage disposal crisis

LIVERMORE — A long standing policy of noninvolvement in the valley's sewage disposal crisis was ended Wednesday when the Zone 7 water management agency voted to study the $38 million project approved last month.

But board members tabled a motion by Director Archer Futch that would have specifically exempted Zone 7 from becoming involved in the regulation of sewage treatment. It would have permitted intervention if disposal practices degrade the valley's groundwater, such as spray irrigation of effluent.

A crowd of 25 persons filled the board room at the Del Valle treatment plant to tell their elected representatives of dissatisfaction with plans to export wastewater that could be reclaimed and used for irrigation in the valley.

Anna Martinson of the CARD committee, representing a group of citizens on record as opposed to the export pipeline project, termed it a "gross waste" to export waste water when it could be used for quarries and agriculture.

Katie Richardson of Livermore characterized the project as taxation without representation, reminding board members that valley voters decisively defeated the proposal last November.

Zone 7 director Robert Pearson said the board should review the entire project to determine its long-range effects.

He refused to support a proposal made by Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) to join together and request state funds to finance a study of reclamation locally. He said it was "a mistake" to separate the basic project from future plans for reclamation.

Pearson opened a verbal attack on Larry Kolb, a representative of the Regional Water Quality Control Board, demanding to know why that board prohibits pollution of Niles ground water (caused by the valley's sewage disposal) but does not concern itself with the quality of valley groundwater, also being effected by disposal plans.

Kolb said that direct disposal via Alameda Creek into Niles groundwater reserves are more harmful than spray irrigation, which filters through layers of soil before reaching the water table.

The Zone board will hold a special meeting April 28, to conduct an in-depth review of the LAVWMA project and its possible consequences.

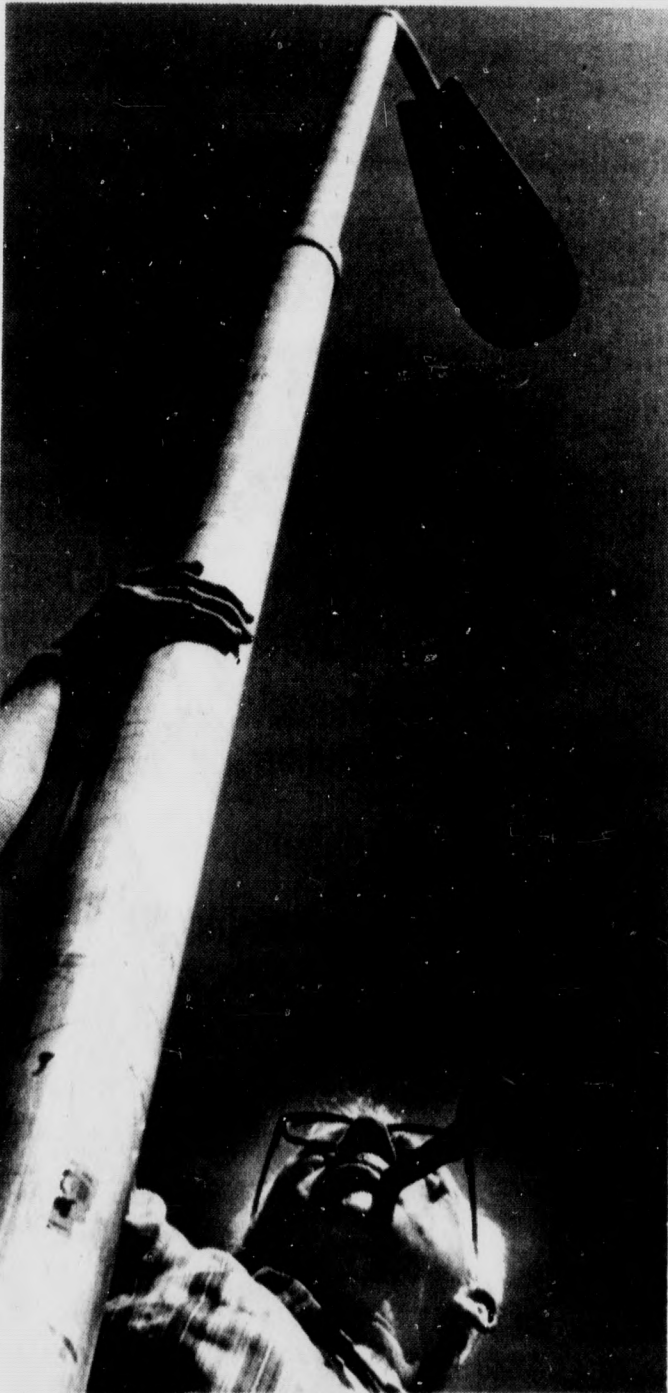

In other action, directors voted to spend $750,000 to construct two new wells in the eastern valley by next summer. This will add a total of 2 million gallons per day storage capacity.

The board agreed to consider future storage needs depending upon what effects the continuing drought will bring.

Mun Mar, Zone 7 general manager, said that water use last month was 32 per cent lower than the same period one year ago. "Give those guys (the public) a great big hand and encourage them to continue conserving water."

Shedding light

Housing director at Livermore's Leahy Square, Bob Suckling, gazes up at new 'vandal proof' lights purchased for the low-cost home project. The bright lights are supposed to make Leahy a safer place to live. They're also supposed to withstand vandals. Some were broken during shipment, however.

Two nationally-acclaimed groups will be appearing under the auspices of Chabot College in the next five days, starting with tonight's concert by the Utah Symphony (above) under the baton of Maurice Abravanel. The concert begins at 8 p.m. at the Chabot College auditorium in Hayward.

On Monday, the Aman Dance Ensemble will perform at the Amador Valley High School auditorium. The magnificently costumed Aman dancers, singers and musicians have been acclaimed as "equal to the great ethnic companies." Tickets are on sale at the Pleasant Recreation Dept.

Bank of America award finals include 3 Livermore students

Three Livermore High School students are amongst finalists in competition for $1,000 in prizes May 5 in Bank of America's 1977 Achievement Awards program.

Susan Davies, vocational arts; Susan Petoletti, fine arts, and Roberta Burdick, liberal arts, are the Livermore High students who'll compete in the finals May 5 at Goodman's in Jack London Square, Oakland. The finals are the culmination of four months of competition beginning at the individual high school level. High school winners then competed at zone events with students from neighboring schools for the chance to go on to the final selection event.

Thirty-six students will compete in the day-long finals in four study fields—vocational arts, liberal arts, fine arts, and science and mathematics. First-place winners in each field win $1,000, with the second-place students winning $750 and third-place winners receiving $500. All other finalists receive $250.

Judges at the event will be: Mrs. Lila Euler, director, Valley Community Services District, Dublin; John Gobel, senior employee relations representative, Shell Chemical Company, San Ramon; Don Arnt, owner-broker, Award Realty, Fremont; Merton Downing, attorney at law, Nicols, Catterton and Downing, Orinda; Dr. J.R. Sheltraw, veterinarian, Thornton Veterinary Medical Hospital, Newark.

Chairman of the judging panel is Dr. Peter S. Van Houten, director, student advising and assistance, University of California.

The judges will evaluate the students on the basis of written compositions and verbal responses to discussion questions. Also considered will be the student's scholastic record, school and community activities and leadership qualities.

Winners will be announced that evening.

Classified school employees will be rewarded for study

LIVERMORE — Livermore Unified School District classified employees (including gardeners, custodians, cafeteria workers, secretaries, clerks and maintenance people) will be rewarded for taking courses, just as teachers are, under an agreement approved Tuesday night by the school board.

For every 10 units of credit they earn, any of the district's 400 classified workers will receive a $250 raise. However, the courses must be in fields that help them to be a better school employee in some way.

The new agreement will give employees credit for courses taken as long as seven years ago, if they were a permanent employee of the district at that time.

According to Rincin School custodian Jim Needels, chairman of the committee presenting the pact, skills some employees have learned on their own time (such as how to fix an air conditioner or do welding) have saved the district considerable expense and deserve to be recognized.

Part-time employees' "professional growth" work will also be rewarded, but on a pro-rated basis; that is, a half-time worker would get a $125 raise for earning 10 credits. A maximum of 50 units, or $1,250, would be allowed to any employee during his or her years with the district.

As with teachers, classified employees' travel related to job expertise will be credited toward the raise. Needels pointed out as an example of district-related travel that head gardener Jimmy Tejada spent his entire vacation one year visiting other districts to see how they handled their gardening procedures.

According to Livermore school personnel director Jack Waggoner, the Pleasanton schools give their classified employees $300 a year for the same number of units of professional growth, but few other school districts go that high. Only about 22 people probably will qualify for immediate raises, Waggoner said, and the program will probably cost no more than $6,600 to implement this year.

Livermore schools join to play string concert

LIVERMORE — The combined strings of Livermore and Granada High Schools, Junction, East Avenue and Mendonhall middle schools will present a free concert April 27 at the Lawrence Livermore Lab.

The concert, in LLL's auditorium, will feature works not ordinarily performed by high school groups. Because of the difficulty of some of the pieces, the idea of combining groups for greater depth of sound was approved by high school teachers Robert Jacobson and Debbie Bellamy.

The middle schools will also combine their groups to achieve a bigger tone. Wilda Wilhite and Debbie Bellamy will conduct the combined middle school musicians.

Robert Routh and Jack Kahn of LLL helped make the auditorium arrangements.

Berkeley Hi jazz band wins Pleasanton awards

PLEASANTON — The Berkeley High School jazz band won the sweepstakes award and seven soloist awards at the Second Pleasanton Invitational Jazz Festival held last Saturday at Amador Valley High.

Proceeds from gate admissions and the snack bar, which amounted to approximately $600, go to the Amador Valley High band tour fund.

Jazz ensembles winning runnerup trophies were San Leandro, second; Pacific, third, and Sunset (Hayward), fourth.

Loma Vista of Concord was adjudged the best intermediate school jazz band with Wells Intermediate of Dublin second.

Other trophies went to San Leandro High, best Band II, and Bancroft (San Leandro), best junior high school band.

The jazz festival was co-sponsored by the Pleasanton Recreation Department and Amador Valley High band.

Japanese tour needs housing

The Homestay program, which hosts visiting Japanese students for three weeks each summer, is still in need of families to house Japanese students coming to the Valley July 30 through August 20.

The students are of high school and college age and will spend the morning taking English conversation classes at Dublin High School.

This is the third summer for the Homestay program in the Valley. Barbara Heimowitz is coordinator of the program and can be reached during the day at Dublin High, 828-6410, or in the evening at 537-2066.

Hosts needed to house, feed French youths

More than 18 families in the Amador-Livermore Valley are preparing to welcome French foreign students into their homes August 4.

The students, ages 15 to 21, will take part in a month-long program of study, travel, and participation in American living.

Homes are still needed to host the foreign students, Larry Moore, program chairman, says.

Host families are requested to provide a place for students to sleep, and furnish all meals.

Other costs of transportation, admission to attractions and incidentals are the responsibility of the student or the Foreign Study League, Moore said.

The students will be studying American culture and language at Amador Valley High School with most of their afternoons free or occupied with excursions of local interests. The students will travel and visit San Francisco, Sausalito, Muir Woods, Carmel, Yosemite, and Santa Cruz. The students will spend time at Marineworld, Africa USA and Great America.

For further information, please call Moore at 846-2818 or 447-6988.

Amador High dance benefit

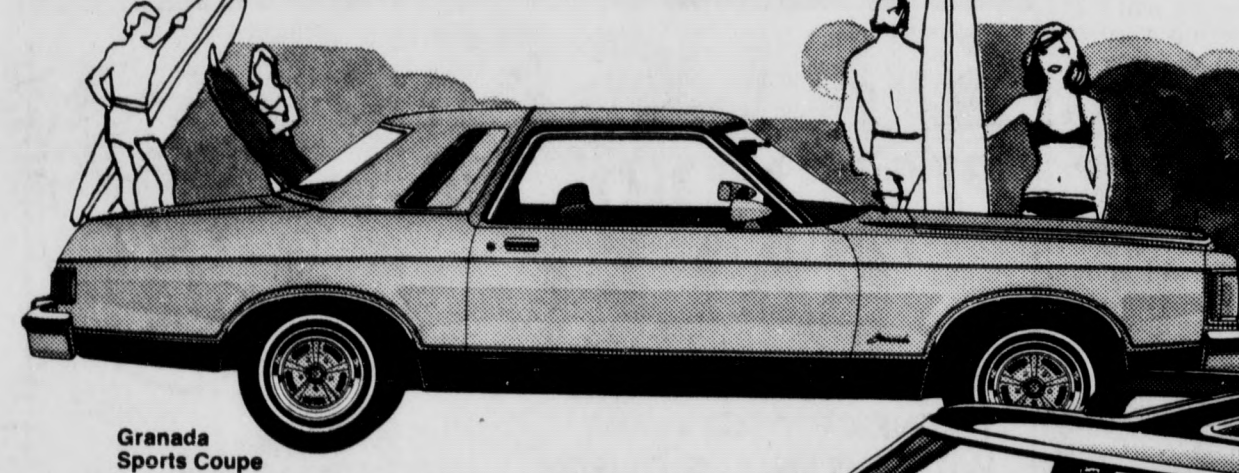

PLEASANTON — The International Club at Amador Valley High School will hold a scholarship fund-raising disco dance Friday, April 29 from 9 to 12 in the school gymnasium.

Proceeds will go to sending an Amador student overseas next school year. The school in turn will host two foreign students.

There will be a dance contest with records as prizes. Terri Piper is club president and Joan Swift faculty advisor.

Heritage Center fund breakdown

Out of that $14,976 amount, $4,976 falls under the 1974 bond act. The remaining $10,000 was committed under service - in-kind donations for water and sewer work.

Other service - in-kind donations total $16,184.

So far, $48,450 has been received through grant funding from the State Bicentennial Commission, ACTEB, Alameda County Bicentennial and Revenue Sharing from Alameda County.

Through fund raising efforts between September 1975 and December 1976, $8,880 was collected.

Completion of the basic project is expected to take four years. Two of the most costly items in the Center involve Old Murray School and Fallon House projects. The former is estimated to cost approximately $74,824; the latter, $35,000.

Citizen volunteer groups plus free - of - charge services from all types of contractors and other organizations have made it possible for DHPA to continue making progress.

Cronin said anyone interested in helping can contact DHPA President Judy Earl at 828-2401 evenings and Staff Assistant Shere Roberts at 828-7476 during the daytime.

A Work Day will be held April 30. DHPA officials said they can use people willing to do light carpentry, painting, light cement and electrical work.

The Heritage Center involves a four-year master plan.

Recently, Old Murray School was placed on its permanent foundation, its two sections joined together and doors and entrances were completed. Related electrical work is being done.

The parking lot grading has been done to allow for proper drainage.

Other completions involving Old Murray School house include: geological and engineering studies of the site, grading and compaction for the foundation, acquiring materials for the foundation, securing structural engineering drawings and leasing land from Dublin Cemetery Association.

Plans to repair and restore the original bell tower are in progress. $15,000 is needed to complete this project.

The DHPA is a non-profit corporation.

Paying them back

Springtown homeowners gave up a little bit of themselves this week to rescue the city-owned nine-hole golf course that twists through their neighborhood.

Now it's time for reciprocal effort to insure their generosity is not wasted.

A great majority of the homeowners association in that quiet corner of Livermore voted Monday night to give up their recreation center to the city. It will be the focal point in a proposed restoration effort at Springtown golf course, a sagging recreational facility that has been a constant drain on city coffers.

Springtowners offered up their center to be used as a clubhouse for the links. It's hoped that a well-stocked golf shop, managed by a qualified teaching professional, will help boost dwindling patronage.

In past years, Springtown course has been operated from the back of a home, the back of a delivery van and most recently, from a rickety shack near the first tee.

A permanent clubhouse would be a major step forward.

It wasn't attained, however, without some amount of rancor. Springtown residents weren't unanimous in their desire to give up the recreation center. Not all are committed to rescuing the golf course.

City officials should remain aware of that in coming weeks when they act to accept or reject the gift of a clubhouse.

If the city goes along with the majority of Springtowners, it should be committed wholeheartedly to upgrading the course. Time and money must be invested beyond a golf shop.

The course itself should be well maintained, and entrusted to a golfing professional with experience and an equal commitment to boosting its stature.

Anything less would be a disservice to all those residents who've sacrificed a bit of home for the community good.

What size car?

Valerie Raymond wants conservation in public office. We say good.

The first district Alameda County supervisor proposed a policy this week that would limit the size car elected county officials may drive.

It is a timely suggestion on the heels of President Carter's somber energy warnings this week in Washington.

Of course skeptics can point to numerous instances when politicians have made great public pronouncements over their sacrifices for the community good. It is a time tested publicity ploy.

But a self-imposed ceiling on what kind of vehicles our leaders may run at public expense is a worthwhile suggestion.

Government tells us to drink less water, use less gasoline, roll back the thermostat in winter and raise it in summer.

We in the private sector often wonder if politicians and bureaucrats do the same.

Are the directors of our water districts splashing in heated swimming pools after a long day of drought warning? Do the nation's energy czars live in 75 degree comfort at home?

If Supervisor Raymond's proposal indeed becomes county policy, we'll at least know how officialdom travels, and how much fuel it burns to get there.

It's at least small solace during the crunch.

FOCUS/Crime aftermath

Forgotten victims

The California District Attorneys Association is leading the effort to restore meaning to the constitutional rights of innocent citizens in this state and reestablish governmental protection from crime and violence.

There seems little doubt that the pendulum of emphasis has swung from dead center on the scale of justice to the side of the criminal element in contemporary society.

The rights of the accused and the criminal have been given greater attention by judge, legislator and media.

The streets and buildings of some metropolitan areas — and now even some suburban areas — are no longer safe at night...or day.

One can read of holdups and assaults taking place on the streets in broad daylight or, as reported in recent days in a Hayward newspaper, of robberies and assaults at a busy regional shopping center.

As a more liberal attitude has enveloped our society (and the porno shops, encounter parlors, hookers, drunks and drug addicts of San Francisco are but one example), the greater the toll of crime. This liberal, "free" attitude, has resulted in more assaults and rapes (to name just two categories).

Supposedly, less "restrictive" statutes or enforcement (as in the case of alleged "victimless" cases of prostitution) would result in fewer crimes against women.

Not so. The lackadaisical enforcement and sentencing demeanor has given the criminal element (and his/her lawyers) a very definite "message."

And the law-abiding populace is "paying" for that message every hour of every day — in the form of assaults, holdups, thefts, con "games," and death!

By a formal resolution authored by Assemblyman Alister McAlister of San Jose and co-authored by 96 other legislators, the California Legislature has declared April 25-29 to be California's Forgotten Victims Week. Similar resolutions have been adopted by public and private agencies all over the state.

During the week, the California District Attorneys Association, of which former Dublin resident George Nicholson is now executive director, will sponsor a series of meetings and luncheon seminars focusing on the ways and means to help victims and witnesses of violent crime. Meetings are scheduled for the convention center in Sacramento and Los Angeles and will be aimed at citizen groups, law enforcement officials, elected public servants, relevant government agencies and the public.

We believe it would be quite apropos for city councils in this Valley, as well as service and civic clubs, to take this opportunity to find out how the pendulum can be swung back toward the center — in the direction of victims and witnesses of violent crime.

Materials, in the form of resolutions a council or club could pass in support of the week, are available by contacting the CDAA, 555 Capitol Mall, Suite 1545, Sacramento 95814, or by calling the offices at (916) 443-2017.

The week will include panel discussions on deterrence and crime, crime and the elderly, rape and other crimes against women (with Oleta Abrams of the Alameda County D.A.'s office and Eva Jefferson - Patterson of the county's Legal Aid Society), crime and rest homes, crime and its impact on minorities, repeat offenders and career criminal programs, victim/witness assistance programs, and victim rights litigation.

The victim/witness assistance program discussion will be led by D. Lowell Jensen, district attorney for Alameda County, and is scheduled Thursday at 10 a.m. in the Sacramento convention center.

We will be at the Wednesday program, to be moderated by Los Angeles district attorney John Van De Kamp, and luncheon, at which State Attorney General Evale Younger will speak.

More on California's Forgotten Victims Week in following issues.

Letters to the Times

Without basis

Editor, The Times
Open letter to G. Roger Gathers

Thank you for your compliments concerning my letter (April 17, 1977).

I wish to remind you of the statistical success I described as occurring in the Amador Valley High School District. You made general statements (erroneously labeled statistics) that students are not succeeding in the school system. On what basis do you make those charges? I pointed out that this year's AVHS District seniors achieved at around the 80 per centile in reading, writing and math. Specifically, you state that students "can't write a coherent sentence." How then do our seniors achieve at the 79 per centile in a nationwide writing examination? Are not the statements you made, rather, the contemporary charges which are popularly being leveled at education without any basis in fact?

Renewed faith

Dear Friends,

Almost two weeks ago a horrible accident took the life of my beautiful wife, Suzanne Zachariades, teacher at Grant School, San Lorenzo Unified School District. This has changed my life. Hopes, plans and dreams seemed crushed and scattered.

However, sincere friends, educators and students in Pleasanton helped transform a situation of despair and frustration into a time of comfort and concern. My heart still aches for my wonderful Suzy, but I want to sincerely thank the many wonderful people in Pleasanton for their prayers and expressions of love. Although this experience has left me unsure and shaky, I have a renewed faith and spirit in human beings.

Once again I appreciate all you have done.

Thank You,
Lee A Zachariades

Cost justified

Editor, The Times:

We are told by school teacher Pete Moore of Dublin High (letters, 3/23) that, in addition to being an underpaid and tired teacher, he receives no bonuses and no pay for vacations and holidays. Yet by using Moore's own data, I calculate he makes a mind boggling daily salary of $108.70.

A lower (and more realistic) daily average occurs if we add in as paid leave all the many weeks of vacation and holidays—Moore's article suggests 49 days. We then see a picture of a "tired" teacher making a daily salary of $85.55 with, as a free bonus, fully paid time off like three months for the summer, a week each for Easter, Xmas, Thanksgiving, and New Years to mention a few of the more sensational ones. And you can be sure that teachers are not at school for eight hours a day, and of the time they are there even less is spent teaching students. Teachers are many things, but being tired ought not to be one of them.

It is amusing how those who feed so voraciously at the public trough, will come up for air around contract time to snort about how much more money is deserved by their well oiled bureaucracy. What they really need is to be cost justified by someone outside their bureaucracy who will question why all the freebees.

Forum for all

Editor, The Times:
"Congress shall make no law... abridging the freedom of speech or of the press..."

These freedoms, guaranteed by our Constitution, are granted not only to those with popular viewpoints but also those with unpopular viewpoints. Those who destroyed the Nazi bookstore in San Francisco were, in essence, violating the Nazis' right of free speech and press.

The only difference between the tactics used by the mob and those used by the Nazis in Germany, was the degree to which they were carried out.

We condemn Russia for prosecuting dissidents and hold our flag high proclaiming how our country allows all voices to speak freely and without fear. Now, by closing our eyes, we are condoning the mob's actions. The true test of our freedom of speech principle is whether or not we permit all sectors an opportunity to exercise these freedoms.

With the guarantee of freedom of speech and press, we also accepted the responsibility to provide a forum for all segments of society, both the good and the bad.

Make 'em welcome

You've read the hard facts elsewhere on the sighting of a UFO in Pleasanton. This story will deal with how local folks can capitalize on the situation.

First, the city council should pass a resolution proclaiming "UFO - Little Visitors Week" to let those distant commuters know they are welcome in Pleasanton.

Pleasanton has plenty of water underground and the city ought to build a water refueling stop for the space travelers. After all, they need their craft's portholes cleaned from time to time to get those squashed meteorite bugs off their windshields. There's no reason why a local private property owner should have to provide the water from her swimming pool; let the city do it.

Of course, those flying saucers will have to pass muster before the city's design review board. We can't have any foreign objects that don't harmonize with the neighborhood.

And don't forget their effect on city traffic. I'm sure the city's traffic engineer, Ken Lamb, would be glad to review UFO's; it's easier than the rest of his job. The Chamber of Commerce should look at this, too. Aerospace industries will want to locate here, sensing a new market. Yes, the city has done all right with its appropriate slogan, "City of Planned Progress." Now that it has progressed to the ultimate stage of evolution, flying saucers, it's time to change the slogan to "UFO Capital of the West." No telling how much commerce we'll attract then.

Tax relief

A disturbing philosophy has emerged in homeowner tax relief proposals advanced by Governor Jerry Brown and a number of legislators. This is the attempt to relate the amount of property tax relief to the income of the owner.

Such an approach ignores the fact that the wealth of the homeowner usually reflects in the value of the property held and such person is already paying a higher proportionate share of local government costs by that fact alone without any further tampering with tax laws.

And the mere holding of a larger home does not mean that such a person is making any greater demand for local government services than those with smaller properties, and often in fact has less need for those services as for example, the public schools which take a large bite of the property taxes.

The idea then, that those living in $40,000 homes with incomes of $25,000 or more will pay a greater property tax than neighbors in similar homes with incomes below $25,000, even to no taxes for those with $10,000 or less, is a Robin Hood approach which ultimately will reduce everyone to a common denominator.

If there is anything to the theory that home ownership is beneficial to the community, by reason of creating a more responsible citizenry, the sole objective of property tax amendments should be the reduction of the burden on all home owners regardless of income.

Any other approach is fraught with peril of social re-engineering to undreamed of ramifications.

What, for example, does the income related approach do to the institution of marriage? Take three homes of equal value. One is owned by a married couple both of whom work. A second is owned by a married couple with only one wage earner. The third is owned singly by a person living unwed with a partner and both are working. The owner of the first home will pay a greater property tax than either of the others. The proposed tax relief then would penalize the first owner for being married and for both partners working.

The irony of that is, as everyone recognizes with today's young couples, both partners must work to afford their own home.

Obviously, the architects of the income related property tax relief have not considered the effects of their proposals for they could hardly be advocating the expansion of the "live in sin" type of society which such an approach must surely breed.

Neither have they considered the aspect which, tax consultants point out, may well encourage many to purchase homes which they cannot afford. For the income related approach would be bound to induce someone with a $15,000 income to purchase a $60,000 home and thus escape the property taxes which he would be required to pay on a more appropriate $20,000 home.

And if income relationship should be considered in property tax relief for any reason, why has it not been proposed in connection with renter relief? By omitting such a provision in the proposals to rebate to renters, on the theory they pay property taxes indirectly, the advocates have moved people even further away from home ownership.

It is one thing to play around with tax shifts to permit lower property taxes for homeowners but to introduce unknown factors which may further crumble the moral fibre of society is a dangerous game.

Round the town

(When newspaper columnists sneak away for day or two, they are apt to fill their allotted space simply by regurgitating one of their old columns. Those who "didn't much care for this piece the first time!" are invited to turn to the comic page—Editor)

Next to a cool can of Coors, my favorite beverage is tea. Hot or cold, cream or lemon. In good times but especially in days of woe, tea is the elixir of my life, the brew bird of happiness.

But not recently. We are having a tea crisis at our house. It is our toughest marital test since the introduction of Saturday golf.

"This batch tastes more like liquid licorice," I announced following yet another tasting. It was some improvement over yesterday's effort, which emerged with all the pungency of hot brandy, but all the flavor of skimmed milk.

"I don't know what to do," she said with considerable exasperation. "I've tried everything, I'm convinced it must be the city water."

We had come to the tea habit not so much because of my Canadian background, but rather in response to her own troubles with coffee. "The stuff just goes right through me," she declared some years ago. Since it was at a coolish Stanford Football game that she made the discovery, and since each such announcement was followed by crawling over great gobs of fans, then up 60 and down 20, just to reach the nearest lady's room, it was apparent that coffee was no longer her thing.

And so we turned to tea. For fully half our married life it would prove to be the one beverage we could share without dayafter lament. But that was before the crisis.

"Some one at Safeway told me their tea isn't much good these days, either. They've switched from Lipton bags to Orange Pekoe. I bought a package." She followed that announcement with a great boiling of water and rattling of cups. We stood around impatiently waiting for the results.

The bag said Darjeeling Golden Orange Pekoe. With a title like that, I thought, how can we miss? But miss we did.

"Reminds me of a popsicle I had once as a kid," I concluded. "The thing melted, so I poured it into a cup. Drank the thing. Tasted absolutely awful."

"If you think you can do any better, I suggest you buy the tea from now on. I'm through," she said, close to tears. It was a delicate moment.

"How about this package of Billy Tea the kids sent us from Australia?" I had been rummaging through the kitchen cabinets. Anything to save our marriage. "My dear mother always made wonderful tea," realizing, as soon as I said it that it was the wrong remark, wrong time, wrong place. But I pressed on. "Pre-heat the tea pot, she would tell us... one teaspoonful for each cup, and one for the pot... pour boiling water directly onto tea leaves." The entire process brought back something else.

"Do you drink this, or eat it with a spoon?" She was getting even. I kept my cool. "I seem to remember mother using a tea leave strainer." I said, rummaging through the kitchen drawers.

"This Billy Tea must be two months old, which could have something to do with it," she suggested. But I was deep in the bottom of the drawers, strainer hunting and cared not for her comments.

We went from there to something called "English Breakfast." Made in the Spice Islands, it said. Tasted like stewed sand.

"How about that crock pot thing the kids bought us last Christmas?" I was getting desperate. "I'm not spending two hours just to brew one pot of tea," she replied. "Maybe we could switch to Ovaltine." I ventured, "look what it did for Orphan Annie."

There was an air of urgency in the room. Like Pasteur in the process of discovering milk, or whatever it was he did. Our kitchen looked like a high school home ec classroom. She was near tears again.

In truth, I am not what you would call a demanding person. My needs in life are simple. "Give me a little cooperation during the week and a 16 handicap on Saturdays, and I am a contented man," I have said more than once. Or perhaps once too often. But a good cup of tea was one condition of that contentment. Now, at the twilight of life, this one pleasure was to be denied us.

"I can remember all those great tea parties mother would participate in." I said to no one in particular. "The tea cup was as important as the brew. Some of them were works of art. Mrs. Ridley would always insist that the cream had to be poured in before tea was added. She would raise hell if it came out the other way around."

"I think you should call the city water department," she said, shocking me back into reality. "Maybe you could write an editorial, or something. I'm sure there are more people in town concerned with this awful water than there are with some silly sewer plant."

"To each his own," I countered, as I flipped open a can of Coors and headed for the outdoors. Even Admiral Hornblower knew when it was time to retreat. But never during tea time.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a 14-year-old boy and I'm mad — mad enough to want to hit some adults. I read the papers and hear the news so I know a lot of kids get into trouble, steal, mug and even murder, but that's still not most kids. I feel the prejudice against teenagers when I walk down the street. I also see it in teachers and parents. People either ignore you or they just don't like you and they let you know it in a lot of ways. We're not dumb. We feel it. I can't speak for others, but I start out feeling bad or sad and then I get mad. I could tell you about a lot of cases but my friend says if I make this letter long, you won't read it. We want somebody to gripe to so you're getting it. Have you any ideas?

—B.G.

DEAR B.G.: First of all, I'm glad you wrote. Sometimes, it helps just to write down your complaints. You might also try to talk to some of the adults you feel are guilty of bias toward teenagers, including your parents. I think most adults will listen and try to understand if you approach them without prejudging their reaction. In short, try to leave some of your anger outside when you enter the room. Try to see the adult as an individual rather than labeling him or her. After all, you want them to see you as an individual. You're hurt because you're not treated as you'd like to be and you transform your feelings of rejection and sadness into anger. Many adults are nervous and afraid of teenagers and instead of trying to talk with them, or trying to see them as individuals, they turn their fear into anger because being "mad" is easier to accept. The only answer is better communications. This will help to overcome prejudice on both sides.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My 4-year-old son has suddenly started using obscene language and I don't know where he heard it. Neither my husband nor I swear and we have no other children. We don't know whether to spank him or wash his mouth out with soap. If I discover he's getting this vile language from children in the neighborhood, I suppose I must then prohibit him from playing with them. This would mean he'd be alone a lot and I think he needs to be with other children. We're just sick about this and don't know what our next move should be. —J.A.

DEAR J.A.: Trying to define obscenity is almost as difficult as defining pornography. What's obscene to one person is merely a strong statement to another.

However, if your son is using language related to sexual activities or bathroom functions, he may not have any idea what these terms mean. If he's using curse or swear words, he may have only a vague notion that these are forceful expressions used by older children. You may be able to determine whether or not he knows what he's saying by observing how he reacts when he's using the language. He may be trying to test your reaction. He may be trying to amuse or shock you or he may be trying to release feelings of anger and aggression.

Swearing is often a way of coping with anger and conflict, but in a 4-year-old it may not indicate any great emotional burden. It's important to remember that unpleasant as swearing may be, it can be a substitute for acting out one's anger, a way of controlling rage.

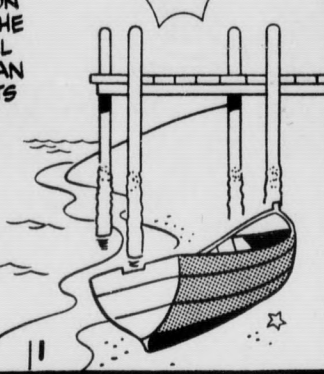

Try not to overreact. Let him know that you don't like to hear this language, but don't give it undue importance. Be calm and the chances are, he'll soon drop the words.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT MAKES THE OCEAN TIDES?"

SCOTT ALVETRO
REYNOLDSVILLE, PA

A. TIDES ARE CAUSED BY THE GRAVITATIONAL PULL OF THE MOON AND SUN UPON THE EARTH. THIS PULL CAUSES THE OCEAN TO RISE ABOVE ITS NORMAL LEVEL.

If you have ever visited the seacoast, you probably noticed that when the tide is low, the water is not so deep at the shoreline.

Ocean tides are caused by the tug of the moon and sun upon the earth.

The moon's gravitational pull is greater. It pulls up the water on the part of the ocean that is directly below the moon, forming a bulge of water.

The tidal bulge is like a great wave that travels over the ocean as it follows under the moon. When it reaches the coast, it raises the waterline along the shore, to cause high tide.

At the same time, the water on the opposite side of the earth is formed there, too, causing a high tide on the side of the earth farthest away from the moon.

So high tide is always occurring in two places on the ocean twice a day.

Low tide occurs when an outgoing tide has pulled back to its farthest point offshore.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be doubly careful in money matters today, especially if you're negotiating with people in whom you don't have complete faith.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Cooperation is apt to be fashioned of flimsy stuff today. It's best you rely more on yourself than on others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An unusual situation could develop today whereby a strain could be placed on your resources because another failed to live up to obligations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In dealing with friends today you're prone to be a little too touchy. If they don't comply exactly, you could become unreasonably angry.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be very careful about staking your reputation on anything you're unsure of today. You could be put in a bad light.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Uncharacteristically, you're not too charitable today. Avoid those pals who might put the bit on you. You'll resent it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're involved in a situation that's moving too slowly, any erratic action you take today to spur it could be more costly than helpful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Hasty decisions made under pressure today could have a boomerang effect. Weigh alternatives judiciously before committing yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A task you thought to be a snap could prove surprisingly difficult today, especially if you're working with an ineffective aide.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might be inspired by someone who took a chance and won, and try to go the same route today. This could be a big mistake.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Although your motives are laudable concerning those under your care, your tactics may defeat your own purpose.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are a bit of a daydreamer today, with a limited attention span. If you're handling the affairs of another, a mental lapse could be costly.

The late John Crawford, one of the greatest of the greatest players of all time, used to show this hand as an example of how you could tell if a man knew how to play the dummy.

South wins the heart lead in dummy. You can't do anything else with a singleton ace. Then declarer should go after diamonds because if he can get four diamond tricks, he doesn't need more than three clubs. And if he can't get four diamonds, he can still hope that clubs will break 3-3.

At trick two South plays a dummy's ace of diamonds, and here is where the key play comes in. He must drop either the eight or the nine. If he drops the four he is not only not a first-rate player but he has also lost his contract.

After dropping the nine, he leads a low diamond and sticks in the eight. If West takes that diamond, South has a tenace over West's remaining honor. So an alert West may refuse to win that trick.

Now South must abandon diamonds and lead a low club. This will cost him an unimportant trick if clubs are 3-3, but gives him game and rubber against the 4-2 division.

All the bosses were out with secretaries

DUBLIN — More bosses than usual took their secretary's out to lunch since the Dublin Chamber of Commerce held their annual "Secretary's Day" luncheon at the Dublin Corral.

The chamber event preceded National Secretaries Week which begins April 24.

Chamber officials presented a house plant to each lady who attended the luncheon. Secretaries were formally introduced by their respective bosses to the crowd of 70.

Entertainment was provided for the ladies' pleasure. Vocalist Penny Williams sang three songs. She was accompanied by guitarist Eric Tucker. He played a solo of one of his original compositions.

Maid of Dublin Angela Rosas also sang. Her father, Jose Rosas, accompanied her on the guitar. He entertains at the Elegant Bib in Alamo.

Chamber Director Tom Driver announced there would be a debate during the next chamber luncheon on May 18 at the Dublin Corral.

He said opponents and proponents of the Komandorski Village issue would express their viewpoints at that time.

Driver explained the basic issue. He said it revolved around whether or not to tear down the existing Village and rebuild it versus rehabilitating what is there.

"Either way it goes it does not involve taxes as far as Dublin residents go. That's the easy part," said Driver.

He said the Komandorski dispute would be put to a referendum vote May 31.

These dolls for grown up girls

PLEASANTON — Grown up girls can enjoy dressing dolls as much as children when an art form called porcelain lace draping is used, according to Michelle Brown of Pleasanton.

She said she begins by saturating a piece of cotton lace with liquid porcelain.

"I place the material on a cookie sheet and sponge the porcelain through the fabric," she said. "When it is ready, I jerk the lace off the sheet. That motion pulls porcelain out of the lace holes leaving the pattern intact."

She said she used various tools and brushes to do the actual draping, setting of pleats and ruffles, etc.

"The porcelain dipped lace will stick to the porcelain doll figures when they are still in the greenware stage."

She said the dressing procedure followed the Michelle Brown and one of her works of art.

"from the skin out" pattern as in real life. Features are china-painted on.

Brown explained it did not matter what color of lace was used.

"The color of the porcelain is what determines the final color of the lace after it is fired in the kiln."

"Only cotton lace can be used," she continued. "When the draped piece is fired, the cotton burns away properly leaving the lace pattern's imprint. Other fabrics either melt before the porcelain is set or they display other unsatisfactory qualities."

When dolls are fired they shrink 20 to 25 per cent. The lace draping shrinks proportionately.

Brown's husband surprised her last Christmas with a kiln.

"That saves me a lot of running around getting other people to do my firing."

Maid hopeful

Dawn Perry is one of 10 young women who'll vie for the Maid of Pleasanton title at the annual Maid of Pleasanton Pageant Sunday, May 29 at Castlewood Country Club. Tickets to the luncheon and pageant, which starts at 1 p.m., are now available through the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce on Neal Street. Reigning Maid of Pleasanton (and Maid of Alameda County) is Julie Hemming.

He needs new design for buildings

PLEASANTON — Paul Iacono will have to submit a new design for three industrial buildings he wants to construct on Johnson Industrial Drive, the city's design review board decided last week on a 2-1 vote.

The panel's majority of Walt Wood and Bob Butler decided that the design of the tilt up concrete buildings was too stark and too close in appearance to the industrial buildings nearby. Bill Jamieson, a member of the Chamber of Commerce's industrial committee, dissented.

Jamieson said that he had mixed feelings about the application. The staff has to specify what it wants in the design, but there also are cost considerations for the developer, said Jamieson.

Iacono said aesthetics was all a matter of opinion and noted he didn't like a nearby building which used a lot of wood and glass. "It may be considered an eyesore in a few years," he said.

License for bikes days set

Livermore Fire Department has established bicycle licensing days on Saturday and Sunday only to insure a fireman on duty when folks come to register their vehicle.

Hours are from 9 a.m. to noon both days.

Bikes may be registered at Fire Station One, 4450 East Ave., Station Two, 951 Rincon Ave., and Station Three, 1389 Bluebell Drive.

IT'S GOING TO BE A LONG, DRY, EXPENSIVE SUMMER.

WHAT HAS THE DROUGHT DONE TO POWER SUPPLIES?

The drought is already having its effect on PG&E's ability to generate electric power this year. Here are the facts:

In a normal year, much of PG&E's electricity is generated by water power. The drought has reduced our hydroelectric generating capacity to less than half of normal. By summer, we expect our reservoirs to be at all-time lows. Any chance of getting enough rain or snow to solve the problem just about disappeared by mid-March.

Last year was also a drought year. But we were able to buy large amounts of hydroelectric power from the Pacific Northwest. This year we can't. Water conditions there are so far below normal that a 10% cutback in power usage has been ordered. So no power at all is available to us from that source this year.

Our Diablo Canyon Nuclear Plant has the capacity to fill the gap. But it is not in operation because it is still in the process of being licensed.

To make up for the missing hydro power this year, we are working our steam-electric generating plants (fueled mostly by oil) overtime. We are also buying power from Southern California and Nevada utilities. The amounts available may or may not be enough to meet all our customers' demands during peak periods in coming months. If there is not enough power to go around, our customers will be asked to cut back their use even more than now. Power shortages that require actual power cutoffs to groups of customers will occur only if voluntary cutbacks fail to work. Or if there is a breakdown of major steam-electric generating equipment. (Such breakdowns, unfortunately, are more apt to happen when generating equipment works overtime, as now.)

WHAT ABOUT THE COSTS TO YOU?

With hydroelectric capacity sharply reduced, it takes more oil to run our steam-electric generating plants. This oil, mostly imported, costs almost $15 a barrel. We will need to burn at least 50 million barrels of it this year—compared to less than 27 million last year. And the more oil we burn, the more electricity will cost.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

If ever the need to conserve energy were clear, it is now. Saving kilowatt hours not only helps relieve the energy shortage, it also saves you real money. Just call or visit your nearest PG&E office. We will provide you with information on how you can cut down on your use of electricity without disrupting your home or business.

On Sports

When the Alameda County All-Star football coaches and press corps representatives turned down Dublin's Jim Boulware for a berth on the "dream" team they made a mistake that will probably come back to haunt them come August 20.

Boulware was the East Bay Area's leading rusher last season and gained over 5,000 yards in his high school career.

Besides that, the stocky running back has speed, enough to gain him a full scholarship from the University of Pacific.

Jim definitely has more speed than Jeff Haile of Piedmont, who was named to the team. While Haile has power and size Boulware more than makes up for that with his ability to break a few long ones.

One of the disadvantages Alameda County has had against the Contra Costa All-Stars since the series began in 1966 is a lack of overall team speed. With a few exceptions, Contra Costa County (which leads the series 7-4) has been able to win their games with a host of speedy running backs.

The coaches selected Granada's Vance Rushing and the Matador back deserved the honor. However, some of the writers in the East Bay Area tended to downgrade the East Bay Athletic League after Livermore and Granada lost in the North Coast Section playoffs.

Perhaps that's one of the reasons Boulware was not selected to the all-star squad.

Some critics of Boulware have said he couldn't or wouldn't block.

However, in the veer offense that Dublin used Boulware was not supposed to block.

Is it right for a player to be excluded from an all-star team because of the offense his high school team used?

I think not. Boulware, with his great running ability could adopt to almost any type of offense in a two-week span.

Apparently another reason Boulware was denied a place on the team was because he supposedly didn't have lateral movement.

That's absurd. Boulware has great lateral movement and can also use his size (6-foot, 195 pounds) to move people out of the middle.

He compares favorably with any back on the Contra Costa team, taking into consideration both his speed and strength.

But apparently the Alameda coaches and writers didn't agree.

This is the second time Boulware has been shafted.

The Gael back was not picked for the All-Northern California team in December but other backs with lesser statistics from weak leagues made the squad.

However, that's to be expected. The All-Northern California team is picked by various sportswriters throughout the area. They know little or nothing about players outside of their area and will generally vote for one of their own athletes if there's any doubt.

But that's not the case in the Alameda County All-Star voting. Boulware was probably the most renowned running back in the East Bay last year. Writers knew about him and so, I assume, did the Alameda coaches.

Maybe they don't mind losing to Contra Costa's finest for the eighth time.

Chabot power stuns SM

HAYWARD — Chabot College pulled off the upset of the Golden Gate Conference baseball season by taking a fantastic 24-7 win over league-leading College of San Mateo here yesterday afternoon.

The Gladiators thus stayed in the thick of the GGC playoffs race with an 9-7-2 mark. San Mateo is now 14-4.

Chabot's win was highlighted by three home runs, one each by Dan Pearson, Allen Regier and Dan Randle. In addition Regier, Pearson and center fielder John Cook added doubles to the 21-hit Gladiators attack.

Chabot jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the first inning and added seven more runs in the second.

Randy LaRocca started the second inning off by belting a single. Catcher Tom Parker flied out but two errors, a hit batsman and three hits later the Glads had a 8-0 advantage.

San Mateo came fighting back with five runs in the third inning despite getting just three hits. Two hit batsman and two walks aided the five-run rally.

However, the Gladiators gradually put the game out of reach from then on.

Chabot added three runs in the third stanza with Regier's three-run homer the entire offense of the inning.

Chabot added two more runs in the fourth, three in the fifth, five in the sixth and four in the eighth.

Pearson and Randle's home runs came in the sixth. Cook walked to open the stanza, Regier singled to left field and then Pearson blasted it over the right field fence. Designated hitter Rob Jensen, who ironically leads the Glads with six homers this season, singled and Randle then smashed his home run, in almost the exact same place in right field where Pearson smashed his.

Regier led the winners with four hits and second baseman Frank Knox added three hits. Knox had three singles, scored twice and had two RBIs.

Pearson and Randle each had three RBIs for the Gladiators.

The Bulldogs only collected four hits but took advantage of five walks by Chabot pitcher Mike Buntgartz and three Chabot errors.

Despite the walks Buntgartz had a fine contest. He gave up just one earned run and fanned four batters in going the distance.

Barry Silver started for San Mateo but lasted only 1½ innings. Bob Humphries relieved him and lasted but 2½ stanzas. Ron Dollio finished the game for San Mateo, working the final five innings and walking three and striking out two batters.

Chabot continues its playoff chase Saturday with agame against host Laney in Oakland. The contest starts at 11 a.m.

SAN FRANCISCO — Head coach Dante Benedetti and his University of San Francisco Dons will take a break from their marathon schedule to play the USF Alumni in the seventh annual USF Alumni Baseball Game Sunday at noon on campus at Ulrich Field.

Following the twin seven inning games, Benedetti will host a reception for the team, the alumni and their families in the Bill Russell Room in Memorial Gym.

The Dons currently own a 10-45 record overall and fell deeper into the Northern California Baseball Association cellar after dropping a three-game road trip to the Wolfpack of Nevada, Reno over the weekend.

The visiting team had already gone home, the track was empty, but a few stragglers just couldn't help remaining until the very end of the track meet to savor a very sweet victory.

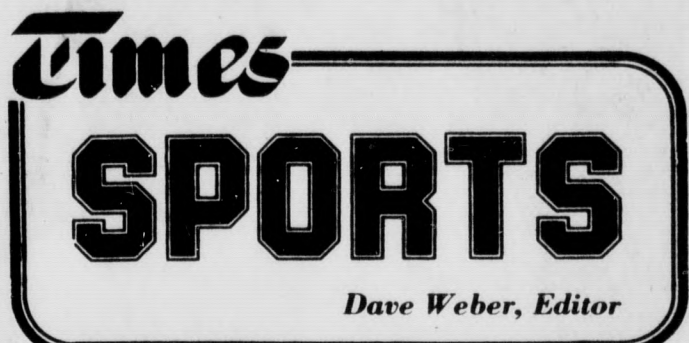

"What's everybody leaving for?" said an observer. "There's history being made."

set the school record of 13-2½ in the pole vault to cap a surprisingly easy 86-50 win over San Ramon to make the East Bay Athletic League track title race a three-way affair.

In another EBAL meet yesterday afternoon Amador Valley crushed Foothill 105-31.

The 'Pokes handed the Danville crew their first loss of the season, and what a cruel beating it was. Only in the 220, 440, 880 and long jump events did the Cowboys fail to place at least two finishers in the top three.

San Ramon, at full strength for the meet, lost any depth they had coming into the meet via more season-high performances by the Cowboys.

Besides Draper's record-setting effort (the old mark was 13-1 by Kevin Garber in 1973), Rob Wentworth streaked to a 9:55.2 in the two-mile, Bob Churchill equalled his EBAL best in the high jump at 6-4 (he went 6-8 at the Antioch Relays) and Wad Andrade heaved the shot put 49-0.

San Ramon received equally impressive performances from standouts Phil Wiltz and Fred Venker, although both tracksters were well off their bests. Wiltz won the long jump (20-10½) and triple jump (42-4½), while Venker tripled again in the 100, 220 and 440.

His time in the 100 was 10.2, the 220 saw a 23.1 and a 51.6 in the 440 completed the sweep. He beat out Livermore's top sprinter, Wes Settle, in both the 100 and 220.

Jim Anklem's 2:01.3 in the 880 was SR's only other first of the afternoon.

Mike Goodison sparked the Amador varsity effort with hurdle wins. He took the 120-yard high hurdles in 16.3 and the 330-yard lows in a fine 42.3.

The Dons' John Sevo was second in the high hurdles and won the long jump and triple jump.

'Quakes may be Child-less

SAN JOSE — Things just seem to be getting worse for the San Jose Earthquakes.

Not only are they 0-2 entering tomorrow night's contest with Seattle here but their injury situation have taken a sudden turn for the worse.

Ace striker Paul Child had six stitches sewn on his toe Wednesday after dropping a saw on it while working at his house.

Child status for the Seattle game is questionable.

If he doesn't play the Quakes could be in for a lot of trouble.

Midfielder Ilija Mitic is still out of action with a torn groin muscle in his left leg. He will not play against Seattle. He offensive mid-field place might be taken by Geoff Davies, a 6-0, 175 pound forward who just arrived here from England.

The 29-year old Davies played for the Boston Minutemen and Chicago Sting last season, scoring eight goals and getting six assists in 17 contests. He scored four times in just five games for Chicago, including a three-goal hat trick in his first appearance at Soldier Field.

Another injured Quake player is center defender John Rowlands. He suffered a hairline fracture of his left foot in the season opener against Los Angeles two weeks ago. His foot is progressing well and he could play tomorrow.

Davies can play at any one of the three forward positions.

The contest will begin at 8 p.m. Seattle is also 0-2 in North American Soccer League action. Both the Earthquakes and Sounders are scoreless in league action.

Las Positas holds invitational tourney

Las Positas Mens Golf Club will hold their annual Invitational Tournament tomorrow at the club's course.

Members of the club will play host to over 50 golfers from other clubs from throughout the bay area and central valley.

Each member and his guest will form a two-man best-ball team. Play will be in two flights, one at full handicap and one at blind bogey. Following the tournament a luncheon will be held at the Red Baron restaurant.

Following are the starting times.

Tigers shutout Red Sox

BOSTON — Rookie Dave Rozema pitched a four-hitter for his first major league victory and Jason Thompson drove in four runs Thursday as the Detroit Tigers breezed to a 8-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Rozema, a 20-year old righthander, struck out four without walking a batter in his third start of the season.

Thompson, Mickey Stanley and Aurelio Rodriguez hit home runs to support Rozema. Thompson unloaded his third homer of the season off Reggie Cleveland, 1-1, with one out in the fourth, then drove in a run with a single in the sixth and added a two-run single in the seventh.

Stanley hit a two-run homer, his first of the year, in the seventh and Rodriguez connected for his first homer in the eighth.

Yankees 8, Blue Jays 6 — Chris Chambliss, dropped from fourth to eighth in New York's potluck batting order, drove in five runs with a pair of doubles and a towering three-run homer as New York blasted Toronto, 8-6.

It was the Yankees' first two-game winning streak of the season.

The Yankees trailed 3-0 after former teammate Otto Velez smacked a two-run homer off Ken Holtzman in the fourth inning.

Chambliss ststed the comeback with a gift double and a run-batted-in when right fielder Steve Bowling misjudged his two-out line drive in the fourth stanza. He doubled a run home in the sixth against starter Jesse Jefferson and scored the tying run on a single by Bucky Dent. The Yankees then pounded Jay reliever Chuck Hartenstein, 0-1, for four runs in the seventh stanza. by Associated Press

Cubs play in Vacaville tourney

VACAVILLE — The Tri-Valley Cubs continue play in the winners' bracket Saturday afternoon at 4:00 when they meet the host team Vacaville in this city's semi-pro baseball tournament.

The Cubs, who defeated rivals Oakland Ravens 3-2 last weekend, will also play on Sunday in the double elimination tournament. Should they win either day, they'll also play next Saturday in the weekend tournament.

Carl Speck stroked a two-run single in the top of the seventh inning to spark the Cubs' win over Oakland, while Jon Deckland scattered three hits and struck out six men. Bob Moore had a double and single.

38 — Dan Juchau (F), Jon Briggs (F), Rick Gielow (F); 40 — Rusty Allen (D); 42 — John Zehnder (F), Dave Konecny (F); 44 — Finlay Boag (D); 45 — Dan Russell (D); 49 — Pete Mangini (D); 52 — Charlie McIntyre (D).

Foothill golfers blast Gaels

Foothill High's golf team claimed five of the top six spots to score an easy 198-230 victory over Dublin, yesterday in East Bay Athletic League competition.

A trio of Falcon golfers were locked in at 38, medalists for the day. Dan Juchau, Jon Briggs and Rick Gielow each tallied the 38 score. Dublin's medalist was Rusty Allen, who recorded the second best score of the day, a 40.

John Zehnder and Dave Konecny, both of Foothill, posted scores of 42 to round

Santos picked

HAYWARD — Cal-State Hayward track coach Jim Santos, a resident of Pleasanton, has been selected as an assistant coach for the United States track team this summer on the European tour.

Santos will join Tom Tellez of the University of Houston, Willie Williams of the University of Arizona, Heil Jackson of Michigan State University and Les Berman of Southern California as coaches on the team.

Santos has been the head coach for both men and women at Cal-State Hayward during his tenure at the campus.

Upset over scrimmage

Warriors' moment of truth

LOS ANGELES — "They played, we didn't. That's all I'm going to say about it."

That could have been Golden State Warrior head coach Al Attles talking after his team had become the Los Angeles Lakers' 38th home court victim of the season Wednesday night to fall behind 1-0 in the Western Conference semi-finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs.

(The second game will be played at the Forum tonight at 8:30 p.m. The game will be simulcast over television channel 2 and radio KNBR 680.)

It wasn't. Jerry West, the increasingly irascible Laker coach was trying to take the steam out of the latest tempest in a teapot brewing here. The subject is LA's full-scrimmage for the Central Division champion Houston Rockets last weekend.

Warrior captain Rick Barry, whose 40 points Wednesday were at once the only thing keeping Golden State in the game and a contributing factor to its offensive stagnation, broached the matter.

"I think the commissioner (Larry O'Brien) has done an exceptional job to this point," Barry told a forrest of microphones hemming him to his locker-room stool. "I disagree 100 percent with him on this."

The Lakers and Rockets drew byes in the two-out-of-three opening series designed to weed out a few of the contenders. Fearing some sort of a lapse, West and Houston coach Tom Nissalke took the teams' to Utah for some unofficial hoop — with O'Brien's blessings.

"I commend Jerry for being intelligent enough to think of something like that," Barry said. "But I just don't think it's right — it's set up so you should just play and accept things the way they are."

For the past two seasons, with the Lakers out of contention, Golden State has won the Pacific Division and been "forced" to set out the first round.

Despite Barry's anger and West's defensiveness, Laker center Kareem Abdul Jabbar, whose 27 points and 16 rebounds were as usual a key for LA, minimized the importance of the scrimmage.

"I was really upset by the lay-off," said Abdul Jabbar, who turned 30 last Saturday. "When you lay off that long (LA's last real NBA game was April 10 in Seattle), your stomach fills up and you get rusty."

Abdul Jabbar, brothered by recurring headaches this season, was nothing more than a pain in the neck to Golden State Wednesday.

Adding to his 55 percent field goal shooting and seven assists was Abdul Jabbar's mere presence in the defensive lane. When Warrior guards shyed away from the key, Laker backcourt men Don Chaney and Earl Tatum — replacing Lucius Allen, who went out early with an injury — were able to force the ball to the sidelines and corners.

Result: The Warriors took only 88 shots in the entire game, Phil Smith scored just six points and with LA shooting 54 percent as a team — forget it.

"We've got to get the ball up the middle," said Warrior center Clifford Ray, who turned in a puzzling five-turnover performance. "The ball's got to come directly at Kareem."

It didn't. What happened?

"I think we could see exactly what was going on," Ray admitted. "We just never got over the hump. They made us play their tempo."

Barry, often accused of carrying on a rivalry with teammate Smith, stated flatly, "we've got to get other people involved. We can't win if Phil only gets six."

But Attles would have no part of the alleged friction between his leading scorers.

"Rick was going well and we have to go to the man whose hot," said Attles. "I hope people don't misinterpret this: Rick gets 40 and Phil gets six and all of a sudden they don't get along."

Tonight's is an important game for Golden State. The Warriors, playing only three games at the Coliseum Arena, must win at least one in Inglewood. Game three will be played Sunday in Oakland with game four following at the Coliseum. The remaining three games will alternate between Los Angeles and Oakland for as long as necessary.

No games involving the Houston Rockets are scheduled.

Little League round-up

Rangers rally tops Twins

The Rangers rallied for three runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to take a 5-3 win over the Twins in Dublin Valley major division competition Tuesday.

Lenny Reyes had a double for the winners and pitched well. George Noble, Glen Doty and Randy Blount all had doubles for the Twins with Blount going two-for-two.

The Red Sox dumped the Tigers 11-2. Morgan pitched well and had three hits in four attempts. Chris Wheat had one RBI for the losers.

In minor league action the Dodgers beat the Expos 10-8, the Mariners edged the Cardinals 13-10, the Cubs trounced the Mets 20-8 the Phillies topped the Giants 18-7, the Hot Dogs and Splits tied, 20-20 and the Sting Rays defeated the Vitamen 15-10.

In Saturday majors action the Orioles smashed the Tigers 11-2.

Larry Heffington pitched a two-hitter for the defending champs as Jeff Simonich led the Orioles with three hits. Tom Cramer had both of the Tigers' RBIs.

The A's topped the Red Sox 6-1 with John Berejka throwing a one-hitter. He also belted a triple and scored the lead run.

The Rangers smashed the Braves 13-0. Scott Gerer hurled a one hitter and had 14 strikeouts. Dave Ulricksen had two hits for the winners. Ken Dargert had the only Brave hit.

Ton Pallinger gave up just two hits as the Royals edged the Twins 2-1. Glen Doty pitched the entire game for the Twins, allowing but four hits. Ronnie Canfield drove in both Royal runs with a double.

Pleasanton National

Brian Keyser and Ted Hirst teamed to pitch a one-hitter as the Braves shutout the Pirates 10-0 in AAA action.

David Armstrong smashed three hits to lead the winners' attack. Brian Keyser added a double. Steve Autchingson added a single and RBI.

Steve Woodfill had the only Pirate hit. Lou Grice made a great center field catch for the winners.

Keyser was the winning pitcher and Tim Archer took the defeat.

The victors struck for four runs in the first and five more in the third.

IN AA play the Pirates turned the tables by trouncing the Braves 13-4.

The winners scored seven runs in the first inning. Scott Iverson belted two doubles and and three RBIs for the winners.

Tom Remien of the Braves had one home run and four RBIs.

Mike Moreland was the winning pitcher.

In an A contest the Braves bounced the Pirates 9-2 as Daven DeNegar and Dave Thompson each had two hits. DOug Wilson added a triple and two RBIs. Dan MacClellan and Troy Yeats each had one hit for the Pirates. Doug Gray was the winning pitcher and Tim Elbert took the loss.

The Braves and Pirates fought to a 3-3 tie in major competition.

Guy Dixon led the Pirates with two hits, one a double. Mike Maris added a single. Scott Jensen and Mike O'Loughlin each had one hit for the losers. O'Loughlin pounded a double.

St. Michael Folk Mass

LIVERMORE — Sunday, May 1, marks the beginning of a second folk music Mass to be celebrated at noon at St. Michael Church.

At present, the 9:30 a.m. Mass on Sunday includes folk music in the liturgy and has been well attended by both young and old. Now that the liturgy has been integrated with the congregation in the form of folk music, it will be extended to a second Mass until June 12 to afford more choice in attendance hours.

Those parishioners interested in attending a later Mass where they may also participate in the folk music liturgy will now have the opportunity to do so. Retention of a second folk music Mass will be evaluated after the June 12.

VCMC Pulpit Exchange

DUBLIN — The Rev. Jim Griffes, pastor of John Knox United Presbyterian Church in Dublin, will exchange pulpits this Sunday at the 10 a.m. service with the Rev. Bill Smith of St. Clare's Episcopal Church in Pleasanton.

These guest appearances are part of the pulpit exchange program of the Valley Covenant Ministry Council. The purpose of the exchange is to strengthen the covenant relationship of the ten churches participating in VCMC in recent years.

Among the activities and services of the Valley Covenant Ministry Council have been the sponsorship of the Choir Festival in February each year, the Easter Sunrise Service at Shadow Cliffs, the Ministry to the Aged Through Community Help (MATCH), and the Hospital Chaplaincy at Valley Memorial Hospital in Livermore. Rev. Griffes has been chairperson of VCMC during 1976-77.

Eckankar seminar

Have you ever had the extraordinary experience of "leaving your body" while your consciousness or spiritual self somehow journeys about having experiences of its own? Perhaps you simply found "yourself" across the room viewing your physical body, or perhaps you even took to "flying" above your house.

If you have ever had such an experience or know of someone who claimed to have an "out-of-body experience," you may be interested in attending a seminar on ECKANKAR.

The event will be sponsored by the Walnut Creek ECKANKAR Satsang Society Saturday, April 23 at the Women's Club of Walnut Creek, 1224 Lincoln Ave. Registration begins at 11 a.m., with an introductory film and lecture at noon and the regular program at 1 p.m. For more details call 933-3555 or 938-2553.

More St. Michael

Father Edward Bratton has been assigned as Associate Pastor of St. Michael Church, and as a replacement for Father Denis Araujo, who will be leaving to take the post of Pastor of St. John's in El Cerrito.

The St. Michael Christian Youth will present a talent show Saturday, April 23 in the Parish Hall, 372 Maple St. in Livermore. The 7 p.m. show is open to adults for $1.50 cents for children and $3.50 for a family group.

Baha'i Ridvan

PLEASANTON — April 21 was the start of a 12 day festival period known to Baha'is as Ridvan (Riz-wan), the time during which the Baha'i faith was first proclaimed publicly in 1863.

On the first day of Ridvan, the Baha'is of Pleasanton met to elect a nine member local spiritual assembly to guide the affairs of their community. The meeting took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jennings.

On the same day Baha'is in more than 900 communities in the United States and in more than 14,000 communities around the world came together for the same purpose.

Baha'i elections are different from those we are generally accustomed to. Nominations and electioneering are not permitted. Elections are conducted in an atmosphere of prayer and quiet, in which nine individuals who receive the plurality of votes are elected.

Assemblies arrive at decisions by a process of prayerful consultation, and their decisions are binding on the members of their communities.

Beth Emek Hatzmaut

LIVERMORE — On Friday, April 22 at 7:30 p.m., there will be a very special service held at Temple Beth Emek, College Ave. and Mt. St.

Hatzmaut, the birthday of the state of Israel, will be celebrated, as well as the Sabbath. The congregation will also be welcoming back Rabbi and Mrs. Goldstein after their travels to the Orient, and will have the presentation of six campership awards to Camp Swig. The public is invited.

LDS Chapel dedication

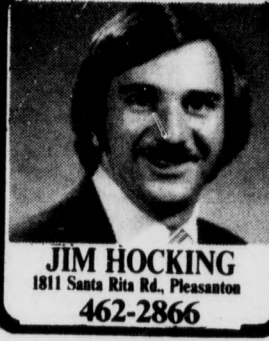

DUBLIN — Dale E. Nielsen, President of the Pleasanton Stake (including Livermore and Dublin areas) of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, will be dedicating the new chapel at 8203 Village Parkway, April 24, 7 p.m. The public is invited.

The Chapel has been under construction since the fall of 1975 and is one of three LDS Chapels in the valley. The building will serve the members of the Dublin and San Ramon Wards.

County's fund split favored

LIVERMORE — Parks and recreation manager Bill Payne plans to urge his bosses to agree with the county's newest formula for dividing almost $4 million in state park funds.

Earlier this week county supervisors agreed a 15-85 per cent split between regional agencies and local government would be the best allotment.

Most cities in the county have been holding out for a high percentage to be allotted on a per capita basis.

Under the new formula, the 85 per cent portion will be split among the 11 cities in the county, Valley Community Services District, Hayward Area Recreation District and LARPD based on population.

LARPD is included in both categories because it serves both municipal and regional recreation needs.

Payne said the formula, if enacted, would bring $158,246 of the per capita funding to LARPD, which would get a $27,925 share of the regional portion.

Payne said he has asked LARPD Chairwoman Lois Ellsaesser for a special board meeting 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Recreation Center, 8th and H streets.

"The timing factor is critical," he noted. "If agencies don't agree by the end of next week we will have to wait a year for any funds."

"If there is agreement, the money will not come before July," he said, indicating the regional funds would be used for upgrading the parking area at Sycamore Grove Park. That park is scheduled to open late spring or early summer.

BART's smoke ban pegs fines

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Smokers beware. Lighting up at a BART station or, worse yet, in a BART train could cost you $50.

General Manager Frank Herringer has the full board of directors' backing to go after legislation that would give district personnel the right to write tickets for smoking inside the paid areas of the system, including the platforms and cars.

The district's current "no smoking" rule was adopted in 1971, but "has been difficult to enforce" without the clout of a fine, a BART representative said.

BART trains have no ashtrays, and people smoking on the platforms "tend to continue when boarding," according to BART Director Dr. Harvey Glasser, who made the motion.

Smoking on the platforms also increases the litter problem and raises the cost of maintenance, Dr. Glasser said.

Non-smokers don't like it, either, he added.

Mori tells Murray staff of added contributions

Assemblyman Floyd Mori told a small gathering of Murray School District teachers Thursday that they and the district will have to kick in an additional 3 per cent to help bring teacher retirement up to 21 per cent.

At the present time, 16 per cent of teacher salaries go to retirement. Mori told teachers that, under terms of AB 65, the state would contribute 2 per cent but the remaining percentage must be made up by teachers and the district.

Pressed on how long the percentage to teacher retirement might stay at 21 per cent, he responded it could be for the next five years.

"What it does (the 21 per cent) is cause us not to get further in the hole," declared Mori in assuaging thoughts that the retirement system could be drained in the next few years.

Mori said Speaker Leo McCarthy has called back all retirement bills in order to take both short-range and long-range views of their potential effects on the system. "Everytime the subject comes up," said Mori, "I say what about the classified employees. They are a vital, necessary part of the school system and they haven't received any increase in benefits in five years."

Mori is carrying a classified employees benefits bill this year.

"It goes back to a long time ago," Mori said in summation on the retirement fund subject. "We just didn't fund retirement enough."

Mori had initially wanted to discuss educational bills currently in the hopper, specifically AB 356. The "back-to-educational basics" measure by Assemblyman Alister McAlister calls for testing initially in the fourth grade to identify students who are not performing up to minimum standards. A similar test would be given in the sixth grade and again in high school. If the student could not meet minimum competencies, no diploma would be granted.

Mori said the concept behind the bill is to identify the student not performing to minimum standards and to individualize instruction. Teachers and Mori also discussed the Early Childhood Education program, concentrating on the percentage of funds the Murray district directs to Miller - Unruh Reading instruction. — by Al Fischer

Bishop Begin retires

Bishop Floyd L. Begin will be honored Sunday, May 1, with a testimonial banquet at Goodman's, Jack London Square, Oakland, on the occasion of his retirement as bishop of the diocese. He will continue to be the active bishop until a successor is named by Pope Paul VI.

Bishop Begin, the oldest active prelate in the United States, has submitted his resignation to the Vatican in compliance with Church law requiring bishops to resign at the age of 75. He celebrated his 75th birthday Feb. 5 of this year.

The dinner will also mark the bishop's 15th anniversary of his installation as the first bishop of the newly formed diocese of Oakland April 28, 1962 and his 30th year as a bishop. He will also commemorate his 50th year in the priesthood July 31.

Bishop Begin came to Oakland from his native Cleveland where he served as auxiliary bishop. The bishop's strong letter on criminal justice emphasized the need for "active concern about the whole system of criminal justice." In the areas of social justice Bishop Begin and other bishops of California urged support of the Fair Housing Act and farm worker legislation. With the Oakland Priests' Senate he condemned the "incursion" into Cambodia during the Vietnam War, the first U.S. bishop to take such an action.

When Bishop Begin arrived in 1962 the new diocese covering Alameda and Contra Costa Counties listed a Catholic population of 329,040 out of a total of 1,314,740 people. The area now numbers 345,865 Catholics among 1,691,800 people.

In his 15 years as a bishop of the diocese of Oakland Bishop Begin has made lasting contributions to the spiritual and physical well being of the area. His leadership in the community has shown itself in the many programs: education for the retarded and the deaf, liturgical renewal and renovation of parish churches, emphasis on ecumenism, the building of the Apostleship of the Sea facility in Oakland, sponsorship of senior citizen housing, and the construction of St. Vincent de Paul Dining Room feeding 400 people daily in Oakland.

It's just good common sense to want great gas mileage these days. But there are more economies built into these Toyotas than just what you'll save at the gas pump.

Durability. It makes sense to buy a car that'll hold up. Toyotas are built to last. That's why you see so many older Toyotas still on the road.

Reliability. It makes sense to buy a car you can depend on. Toyota built its reputation with reliable cars. For example, you can't buy a new Toyota that doesn't have a transistorized ignition system for dependable starting. And there are 27 different Toyota models to choose from.

Value. It makes sense to buy a car that'll hold its value. A Toyota is like money in the bank, because Toyotas have traditionally high resale value.

*These California EPA results are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment.

STAR GUIDE

If you're an astrology buff, you won't want to start your day without consulting the "Astrograph" by Bernice Bede Osol. It's in the stars.

Want a finer lawn? Then read this!

Last summer, was your lawn starting to thin out? Brown patches showing up here and there? To much shade, or too many kids playing on it to give it a chance?

It doesn't make much difference whether you are starting from scratch with a new lawn or your lawn is ten, twenty-five or fifty years old; here are some facts you should consider:

WITH AN OLD LAWN you don't have to put up with a scuffy, unsightly lawn you are ashamed of . . .

WITH A NEW LAWN you can avoid the discouragement and problems mentioned above.

HERE IS WHY: Research facilities, established nearly a third of a century ago by Warren's Turf Nursery, Inc., have under observation over 1,000 strains and species of lawn grasses. Several of these new grass discoveries have had excellent ratings from universities who are doing turfgrass research. They have no financial interest in the sale of these new grasses.

One of these grasses is BenSun® (A-34) Kentucky Bluegrass which outranks all other bluegrasses in most of the categories studied and tested. For example: BenSun (A-34) is rated the most shade tolerant of any bluegrass.

BenSun (A-34) is the only grass to receive an excellent rating for wear tolerance.

BenSun (A-34) is rated at or near the top in disease resistance.

BenSun (A-34) has been under observation for twenty-five years and has been performance proven on hundreds of thousands of lawns, athletic fields and golf courses for the past eighteen years. No other recent bluegrass development has had such a long experience of successful ratings and performance.

BenSun (A-34) thrives in hot or cold climates, high or low altitudes and does well on good or poor soils.

BenSun (A-34) is the most hardy bluegrass available. When injured it springs back quickly, healing the injury in a very short time.

BenSun (A-34) was the only grass to remain green during the recent drought in England and Scotland. Tees at St. Andrews Golf Course planted with BenSun (A-34) remained green even when not watered regularly.

BenSun (A-34) Kentucky Bluegrass is available as sod, sod plugs or seed. The sod and sod plugs of BenSun (A-34) are guaranteed against loss from growth failure. BenSun (A-34) Sun & Shade Mixture Lawn-grass Seed is guaranteed as follows:

"If you are not satisfied with the results obtained from this seed, return the empty box with proof of purchase within 6 months to Warren's Turf Nursery, Inc. You will be supplied with more seed or your money will be refunded, your choice."

For every person who sees the inside of your home, thousands will see your lawn and landscaping around your home. So when renovating an old lawn or establishing a new lawn why not insist on the finest lawn possible at the lowest price possible . . . BenSun (A-34) Kentucky Bluegrass. You, your children and maybe your grandchildren will be glad you did. BenSun (A-34) is like a diamond . . . it is forever.

BenSun (A-34) is a product of the world's largest, one of the oldest and most experienced grower of fine lawns.

WARREN'S LAWN FERTILIZERS: Warren's research has selected the best formula of fertilizers to care for your lawn. Warren's LAWN FOOD and WEED & FEED have the proper balance of chemicals to give your lawn the proper food nutrients.

WARREN'S PRODUCTS are available from your Landscape Contractor or local Garden Supply Dealer.

Unique camper wins award

A combination of low price, excellent handling, good looks and a unique feature won the Best of Class designation for the Sunrader camper from the panel of judges at Woodall's Trailer and RV Travel Guide.

The Sunrader is not so much a pickup camper as a conversion. You have your dealer deliver one of those gas - stingy import pickup trucks to the Sunrader factory, and they install the pickup camper and modify the pickup by adding dual rear wheels and extra suspension.

The Design Awards screening committee agreed, stipulating that the dual wheels and extra suspension were essential elements in the excellent handling characteristics of the Toyota - based Sunrader entered in the competition.

Fuel economy is further enhanced by the Sunrader's smooth aerodynamic profile.

The unique Sunrader feature is its rear wall, which swings up to roof level to create, with the help of a Velcro - attached tent, a sun room. When the tent is not in use, access to the camper is through the rear door.

The low price — under $10,000 including pickup — drew favorable attention from the judges.

The total price is $8,995 from Gardner - Pacific Corp., Vallejo.

The camper is constructed with reinforced fiberglass and interior paneling, designed by Stewart Gardner. It includes a three - burner stove with power range hood, a double stainless steel sink, 20 gallon water tank with pump, a 5.5-gallon butane tank, a 50-pound ice chest and a 12/110-volt electrical system with converter.

The camper sleeps four in bunk fashion, two in pull-out overhead cabover bunk and two in folding dinette.

A sausage cutting

Over at Dean's Deli, they don't cut ribbons when they have a grand opening — they cut sausages instead. And that's no baloney. Seriously though, folks, those chopped hors d'oeuvres did serve as the ceremonial ribbon cutting with City Council Member Joyce LeClaire, Doris Correa, Chamber of Commerce President Bill Hirst, Maid of Pleasanton Julie Hemming, and owner Jim Moats sharing the bounty. The deli is located at 624 Main St., next to Moats' Dean's Cafe, and will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Cheese, deli meat, pickles, sardines and other goodies will be featured.
